

Supplementary Listing Record

NRIS Reference Number: 85003232

Date Listed: 12-30-1985

Property Name: Benton Park Historic District

County: St. Louis

State: Missouri

This property is listed in the National Register of Historic Places in accordance with the attached nomination documentation subject to the following exceptions, exclusions, or amendments notwithstanding the National Park Service certification included in the nomination documentation.

Barbara Wyatt 7-16-21

Signature of the Keeper

Amended items in Nomination:

The house at 2724 S. Jefferson, considered contributing when the district was listed in 1985, no longer contributes to the historic district because of substantial modification. Since the property was listed, the following changes are observed: on the front, a full length dormer with a shed roof was added; the segmental arches in the front windows and door were changed to rectangular openings; an extension of the roof conceals part of the brick detailing in the cornice; and porch columns appear to be recent and thinner than typical of the period. On the back, another full-length dormer was installed and the porch was modified.

The Missouri SHPO submitted documentation that provides an analysis of 2724 S. Jefferson, confirming that the house was changed and is not in keeping with other houses of a similar style and period. The following photos show the altered front and rear elevations.

Back of 2724 S. Jefferson. Addition of large dormer and loss of back porch.

THE MISSOURI SHPO was notified of this amendment.

Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

Located on St. Louis' south side, the Benton Park District is a 19th and early 20th century immigrant neighborhood comprising approximately 1668 contributing buildings and 186 non-contributing ones. The majority of structures are residential; in addition, there are three public schools, four churches and two parochial schools, two brewery complexes and three smaller industrial buildings. The contributing buildings were constructed between circa 1848 and 1935; except for a small number of early frame one story houses, the buildings are brick, the traditional St. Louis building material. Residential examples predominately are multi-family, constructed as two- to six-bay, one and two story detached houses and as two- and three-bay, two story attached rows. Two primary commercial strips on Cherokee Street and Jefferson Avenue have concentrations of buildings combining first story storefronts and second story flats; numerous other mixed-use buildings appear on corners throughout the District. While ornamental detailing and roof forms provide stylistic variations, District buildings are unified by their overall planar facades, similar cornice lines, materials, color and scale. The District's street plan follows grids laid out at the time the subdivisions were originally platted. Three public parks, Cherokee Park, Carnegie Place and Benton Park (Photo #1) were set aside as open spaces in the 19th century.

Compared with similar inner city neighborhoods, the Benton Park District has survived with unusually high structural density and little loss of integrity. The vast majority of streetscapes are intact with little demolition, few intrusions and minor alterations to buildings. Where alterations have occurred, they most frequently are replacements to deteriorated elements on rear elevations (Photo #31), cornices (Photos #54, 59, 83), porch supports (Photos #17, 21), and mansard roofs (Photos #42, 43). Some storefronts are boarded but the cast iron framing is undisturbed (Photos #63, 64, 88). The houses have been well-maintained and have a high rate of owner-occupancy.

All non-contributing buildings are designated with an asterisk on the Architectural Survey Map; they include buildings which are less than fifty years old such as numerous one story brick in-fill houses (Photo #2) as well as various other commercial and industrial buildings (Photos #80, right; 103, right). Examples of non-contributing historic buildings which have lost integrity through radical facade alteration are illustrated in Photos #3, 4, 5.

All contributing buildings are coded by letter on the Architectural Survey Map under eight classifications (often overlapping) based on style and use. Dates assigned to various style groups below often overlap as styles changed at different rates.

Early Residential: Greek Revival and Vernacular Forms, circa 1848 - 1880, Coded A (Photos #6 - 19).

This category includes one prime example of Greek Revival exhibited in an 1861 addition to a circa 1848 house - Photo #6, and other houses illustrating various elements of Greek Revival such as white stone lintels, brick dentilling and pedimented dormers (Photos #7, 8, 9). A larger number of buildings illustrate a vernacular classical tradition, modestly expressed with simple brick dentilling at the cornice (or occasionally a simple wood cornice) and pedimented dormers. These houses are one or two stories high, usually two to four bays wide and feature segmentally arched openings; a few employ jack arches. Side-gabled roofs are most common, but low hipped roofs also occur. In two-story examples, access to second story units is gained by rear wood exterior stairs. Sometimes interiors feature simple pedimented window and door enframements (Photos #10 through 14). A second group of early houses in either frame or brick are without exterior stylistic detailing and are identified principally by distinctive roof profiles represented in two basic types. The first exhibits a single-slope roof, known locally as a "flounder house" (Photos #9, center; 15); usually they are one story high and feature segmental arches. The second type, a variant of the Creole Cottage, employs a side-gabled roof extended over the house front to form a porch roof which is supported by slender wood columns; the house usually rests on a high stone foundation (Photos #17, 18). A sub-type combining features of both the flounder and Creole Cottage is illustrated in Photo #7, right and #16. Simple one story frame houses, both front and side-gabled, are also found (Photo #19).

Italianate, 1865 - 1890, Coded B (Photos #20 - 39).

Two large, five-bay 1860s houses introduced early Italianate features such as round-arched openings, bold projecting wood cornices, recessed entrances with double front doors and higher foundations requiring several front steps, which were imitated in smaller houses of the next three decades (Photos # 20 - 21). Later houses are one or two stories high, usually two or three bays wide and appear detached and in rows. In some, segmentally arched openings are employed or mixed with round arches. Bracketed wood cornices often feature incised Eastlake or Neo-Grec designs (Photos #22, foreground; 23 through 30). A common alternative to wood cornices is corbelled brick, laid in decorative patterns often imitating brackets (Photos #33 - 37). In addition to houses, Italianate styling appears on an 1875 firehouse (Photo #39) and in the Lemp Brewery complex discussed under Industry.

Mansard, circa 1870 - 1900, Coded C (Photos #40 - 56).

The popularity and longevity of the mansard roof in Benton Park and similar neighborhoods justify a classification based on that single feature. Mansards appear on almost every block either as an addition to an older house or construction with a new house. Gray slate is the most common roof material, sometimes enriched with polychrome patterns. The early mansard roofs feature flared profiles and round headed dormers (Photos #8, 23) while later examples are straight-sided, usually with gabled or hipped dormers; occasionally dormers are given a towered effect (Photos #52, 53, 54). Most mansard style buildings share general Italianate characteristics such as bracketed wood or corbelled brick cornices, segmentally and round arched openings, double front doors, raised stone foundations and planar facades. Typical sizes range from two-bay one or two story houses to four-bay, two story multi-family. A few feature storefronts.

Late Nineteenth Century Revival, circa 1835 - 1910, Coded D (Photos #57 - 73).

Toward the end of the nineteenth century, many District builders began to include a wider variety of elements in their designs based on new revival styles popular at the time such as the Queen Anne, Romanesque and Classical. With some exceptions, the styles are expressed principally in detailing such as window and dormer treatment, roof forms, and ornament; often different stylistic motifs are combined on the same building. Typical new features include broad-arched openings; small towers or turrets with conical or pyramidal roofs; large, gabled dormers; terra cotta panels and friezes; decorative ironwork; elaborated brickwork on cornices, windows and doors; and a few projecting front porches. Early evidence of the new fashions can be found in Mansard Style buildings which attempt picturesque effects through enriched dormer designs and/or slightly projecting bays that break the planar facades (Photos #55, 56). More fully developed expressions of the Queen Anne and Romanesque modes are illustrated in large houses of the period which display irregular massing and complex roof forms in addition to new detailing (Photos #57, 58, 60). The majority of buildings, however, maintain the basic rectangular shape of earlier structures, and employ either flat roofs (sometimes masked with prominent facade gables, parapets and small pseudo-roof forms, Photo #69; 70, right; 71) or mansards.

Craftsman, circa 1905 - 1935, Coded E (Photos #74 - 80).

The greatest number of buildings in this category are two story twentieth century flats, typically four to six bays wide, housing four to six families. Unlike some nineteenth century flats, all employ interior stairs to second story units. Some early examples still retain nineteenth century features such as segmental and round arched openings (Photo #74; 80, four houses in foreground). These features are generally replaced by unembellished rectangular openings and cornices variously handled as simple projecting bands of terra cotta or as inlaid brick patterning; low parapets, coped with terra cotta, or tiled overhanging "pseudo" roofs mark the flat roofs. A number of these flats employ projecting front porches sometimes with Craftsman-detailed gabled roofs. A few, small private houses are found with Craftsman or Bungaloid features (Photo #79).

Commercial, circa 1875 - 1920, Coded F (Photos #81 - 88).

Very few buildings in the District were constructed exclusively for commercial use; a primary exception is the Classical Revival Jefferson-Gravois Bank of 1926 (Photo #81). The vast majority, however, combined first story commercial use with second story residential. Except for the storefronts, these buildings exhibit the same form and stylistic characteristics of contemporary housing (i.e., Vernacular Classicism, Italianate, Mansard, Revival, Craftsman). Thus they have been coded both with the letter signifying the overall style of the building and with the "F" code for commercial use to indicate first story storefronts. Most 1880s and 1890s storefronts are cast iron framed; after the turn of the century, the ornamental iron front disappears, replaced with simple Craftsman brick and terra cotta framing. The two principal concentrations of commercial storefront buildings are located along Jefferson Avenue (Photos #82, 83, 84) and on Cherokee Street (Photos #95 - 88). Numerous other examples appear at intersections throughout the District (Photos #13, 14, 63, 64, 65, 74, 75).

Industrial, circa 1874 - 1935, Coded G (Photos #89 - 97; Figures #2, 3, 4; Architectural Survey Map).

The major industrial buildings are represented by two brewery complexes; smaller industries include two 1890s tanning structures and a 1911 shirt factory. Although larger in size than contemporary housing, most of the buildings maintain the tradition of red brick masonry construction and brick detailing found in the domestic architecture.

The earliest structures on the site are the four story, four bay Brew House (1887), the three story, three bay Stock House (1896), and the three story, three bay by seven bay Stock House Addition (1899) (Photo #89). The four story Brew House at 2317 Lemp rests on a high stone foundation and employs round-arched window openings and a round-arched door opening on the north bay. Lower story openings throughout all three structures are boarded. A corbelled belt course divides the facade horizontally between the first and second stories. An arcaded pier and recessed spandrel system is featured on the second and third stories, and multi-paned, transomed windows are employed; however, the entrance bay employs only a single narrow staircase window. The structure is embellished by a projecting tower over the entrance bay. The tower features blind, round-arched openings, hipped roof, and a corbelled cornice similar to that which caps the principal elevations of the Brew House. The south corner of the structure was further embellished by a pronounced pier, similar to those employed on the Stock House, which once projected over the roofline (Figure #4). However, more recently all piers have been reduced to a height flush with the roofline.

The adjacent Stock House at 2311-13 Lemp and Stock House Addition at 2300 Lemp are articulated in a similar manner. Both employ the first story belt course established by the design of the Brew House, and each features a projecting corbel table. Segmentally arched window and door openings are employed throughout each design. Bays are defined by raised brick piers which at one time projected beyond the roofline. The Stock House is further embellished by a monumental round-arched entrance flanked by a round-arched window on the lower story, and a projecting tower with blind, round-arched openings. The roof and cornice of the projecting tower have been removed.

A second building phase in the early part of the twentieth century saw the construction of the two Brew House Additions at 2321 and 2325 Lemp Street. The earlier addition at 2325 Lemp was constructed in 1916. The three story, two bay principal elevation features segmentally arched windows, five bay attic story, corbelled cornice and brick parapet. The infill addition at 2321 Lemp was constructed shortly after in 1919. Virtually unarticulated, the two and one-half story addition features three paneled parachute delivery doors above the second story.

The third, post-Prohibition, phase of construction occurred beginning in 1933. Constructed in 1933-34, the two story, eight bay Warehouse at 2333 Lemp features a concrete foundation and is articulated by raised piers with white terra cotta caps. The structure is windowless.

Adjacent to the Stock House Addition, the Loading Office at 1916 Shenandoah (Photo #90, left rear) was constructed circa 1935. The two story, six bay principal elevation features clapboard siding and corrugated metal doors on the lower story, and rectangular window openings (boarded) above.

Constructed in 1935, the one story, three bay Office at 1930-36 Shenandoah features a wide central bay flanked by narrow outer bays. Pilaster strips embellished by white terra cotta caps articulate the bays. The west bay employs a garage style door, and multi-pane industrial style windows are seen throughout the structure.

Lemp Brewery, Lemp and Cherokee Streets (Photos #92 through 96: Figures #2, 3; Architectural Survey Map)

An Italianate/Renaissance Revival design precedent was set in the earliest buildings which was carried through the Lemp complex for over four decades. Virtually all major structures share characteristics of the first buildings to occupy the site.

The two earliest extant Lemp Brewery structures are the Malt Houses (Photo #92, left and center) which stand on the corner of Cherokee and S. Eighteenth Streets. Constructed circa 1874, the structures were originally each three stories, and both featured rusticated pier articulation. The prominent nine bay by three bay corner structure also features the characteristic arcaded pier and recessed spandrel system and round-arched windows, whereas the less visible five bay Malt House fronting S. Eighteenth Street simply employs segmentally arched openings. In 1887, three stories were added to the corner structure. More recently, the rusticated piers have been removed from the facade of the adjacent structure.

The Old Stock House was constructed circa 1880. Originally twelve bays deep and three stories tall, the east elevation features rusticated pier articulation, and is horizontally divided by corbelled brick belt courses. Three round-arched windows are employed on the first and second stories, and third story lunette windows are utilized in groups of four on each bay. In 1907, an additional two stories were constructed atop the older structure. Featuring twenty-pane industrial style windows, this addition obscures the original corbelled cornice of the 1880s structure. In 1911, the structure was reduced from the original twelve to four and one-half bays when the new Brew House was constructed.

The Warehouse at 902-08 Cherokee Street (Photo #93, center) features a similar 1924 third story addition employing twenty pane industrial style windows. Constructed in 1879, the original two story, four bay by ten bay structure is articulated by raised piers, and employs paired, round-arched windows on the principal facade and rectangular sash windows on the east and west elevations. A small two story addition to the rear (south) of the structure is unarticulated, and is capped by a corbelled cornice.

The Old Boiler House on South Eighteenth Street was erected in 1887. The one story, eight bay by three bay structure features the original garage bay with paneled sliding pocket doors enframed between two round-arched window openings on the principal elevation. Round-arched windows are also employed on the eight bay south elevation. The hipped roof is capped by a gabled clerestory.

Constructed in 1889, the four story Engine House is comprised of the original first story, featuring pier articulation and paired, six-pane windows with ornamental fan lights above, and the later (circa 1900) upper stories employing twenty-four-pane industrial style windows. Many windows have been infilled with brick on the rear (west) elevation.

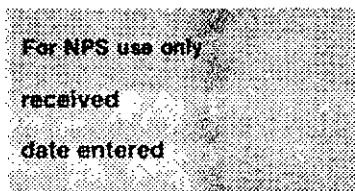

The small "L"-shaped Western Cable Railway building in the center yard of the plant (Photo #94, foreground) was constructed circa 1890. The one story, three bay by six bay structure is defined by rusticated piers, and utilizes round-arched window and door openings. Openings have been boarded on all elevations. The structure is capped by a corbelled cornice and stepped parapet.

Constructed circa 1892, the three story, nine bay Ice Plant at 3517-21 S. Broadway features a monumental round-arched entrance enframed between rusticated piers. Round-arched windows are employed above, and on flanking outer bays. The facade is divided horizontally by a corbelled belt course between the second and third stories, and the principal elevation is also terminated by a corbelled cornice and stepped parapet. Segmentally arched windows in a random fenestration pattern are seen on the west elevation.

Constructed in 1893, the three story, four bay by nine bay Drying House at 3410 Lemp Street (rear elevation; Photo #94, far right) features rusticated pier corner articulation and paired, round-arched eleven over nine sash windows throughout. An original two story addition constructed atop the rear of the structure is similarly articulated. Each bay of the adjacent three story, five bay by nine bay Warehouse (1896) is defined by rusticated piers. The principal elevation features paired, ten over ten rectangular sash windows on the lower two stories, and identical paired, round-arched eleven over nine windows on the third story. Both structures are embellished by white terra cotta banding, pier caps and coping on the Lemp and Cherokee Street elevations. Corbelled cornices and stepped parapets terminate the principal elevations.

The nearby Wagon House at 1817 Cherokee Street was erected in 1895. The nine bay Cherokee Street facade is defined by a narrow central bay and narrow corner bays which enframe three wider bays between. Monumental round-arched delivery door entrances and large rectangular window openings infilled with glass block are featured on the lower story of this elevation. Above, round-arched Chicago-style windows interspersed with roundel windows are featured. The ten bay Lemp Street elevation also employs rectangular windows infilled with glass block on the lower story, and round-arched and roundel windows above. Round-arched windows in a regular fenestration pattern are seen on the rear (north) elevation. A heavily corbelled cornice caps all three elevations.

The three story Bottling Department was erected in 1900 (Photo #96). The nine bay by fourteen bay structure features a high stone foundation, rusticated piers, round-arched third story terra cotta panels and extended rhythms of arched windows. The Broadway elevation is capped by a corbelled cornice and stepped parapet. Rectangular sash windows in random fenestration patterns are employed on the east and west elevations.

The adjacent two story Bottling Addition at 900 Cherokee Street (Photo #93, left) features a high stone foundation, single round-arched windows on the lower story, and similar, paired round-arched windows above. The four bay by two bay structure is articulated by characteristic rusticated piers, and a corbelled cornice.

The five story Grain Elevators and attached six story northeast corner tower were erected in 1905 (Photo #94). The elevators are unarticulated except for a corbelled cornice. The attached tower employs an arcaded pier and recessed spandrel system on all elevations. Large round-arched windows are utilized on the lower two stories of the tower.

The 1906 Fermenting House fronting Eighteenth Street (Photo #92, far right) is a seven story, four bay by eight bay structure with a smaller three story, three bay by three bay addition constructed atop the adjacent circa 1874 Malt House. The Fermenting House features rusticated corner piers, round-arched openings and a corbelled cornice.

The Boiler House at 3500 S. Broadway was erected adjacent to the circa 1892 Ice House in 1909 (Photo #95, far right). The two western bays of the eight bay principal elevation are identical to those of the Ice House. Dividing the Ice House and Boiler House is a four story, one bay structure featuring a monumental, corbelled compound-arch entrance. The adjacent four story five bay Boiler House features a high stone foundation and five formal entrances with dressed stone engaged pier surrounds supporting full entablatures on the lower story. An arcaded pier and recessed spandrel system is employed on the upper stories. The structure is embellished white terra cotta banding, a heavily corbelled cornice and projecting parapet cornice.

The New Stock House, a six story, ten by eight bay structure, was erected in 1911 (Photo #93, right). Outer bays in each of the principal elevations are delineated by rusticated piers, and similar piers also define the corners. Except for rectangular sash windows on each outer bay, the lower four stories of the New Stock House are virtually unarticulated.

The two story Wash Houses fronting the rail lines in the center of the plant extend fourteen bays by nine bays (Photo #95, far left rear); they feature loading dock garage-style bays on the lower story, and fifty-two pane industrial style windows above. Bays are defined by raised piers, and the structure is capped by a corbelled cornice.

The Wagon House Addition at 1801 Cherokee Street was constructed in 1912. The one story, ten by six bay structure is articulated by raised brick piers, and thirty-two over thirty-two pane industrial style windows are employed. The structure features a gabled roof.

Rice Stix Dry Goods Manufactory, 2836-50 South Jefferson (Photo #97)

Designed in 1911 by architect George F. A. Brueggeman, the Rice Stix Manufactory features exposed reinforced concrete framing and brick curtain walls. The five story structure employs a "U"-shaped plan about a central light court in the rear of the plant. Sixteen pane industrial style windows are utilized in groups of four throughout the structure however, original industrial windows at the second story level of the principal (west) elevation have been replaced with glass block. Many entrances and windows on the rear (east) elevations have been infilled with corrugated metal panels.

Constructed circa 1896 for the E. Hartmann Leather and Hide Company, the building is a three story, six bay by eight bay red brick structure augmented by an original nine bay by eight bay one story addition to the rear (north). Both the original one and three story sections employ segmentally arched window and door openings throughout; however, all original sash windows have been replaced with glass block and smaller casement windows. Brick corbelling and a pedimented parapet terminate the principal (west) elevation. Ornamental brickwork in a basketweave pattern is featured in the projecting parapet.

1926-28 S. Gravois (not illustrated)

Constructed in 1892, also for the E. Hartmann Leather and Hide Company, the building is a three story, six bay by six bay red brick structure employing segmentally arched window and door openings throughout. On the principal (north) elevation, four over four sash windows and a transomed entrance are capped by polychromatic red and black brick voussoirs linked by black brick spandrel-strips. Stone sill brackets on this elevation are embellished by pierced-work. The original heavily corbelled cornice is intact. The west elevation of the structure is unarticulated, whereas the opposing east elevation features six over six sash windows and stone sill. Third story windows on this elevation have been infilled with brick. The south (rear) elevation employs four over four sash windows in a regular fenestration pattern.

Institutional Buildings, circa 1884 - 1905, Coded II (Photos #98 - 104).

Olive Branch Presbyterian Church (formerly Congregational), 2201 Sidney Street (Photo #98)

The first section of the church was constructed in the Gothic Revival style in 1884 as a five by one bay red brick nave (not pictured), articulated by stepped buttressing and a corbelled brick cornice. The Romanesque facade addition with projecting central bay and western bell tower was constructed in 1898. Employing one-over-one leaded glass sash windows with brick jack arches and stone sills throughout, the painted Sidney Street facade features round-arched, shuttered windows on the bell tower, a denticulated brick cornice and hipped roof.

St. Agnes Catholic Church, 1935 Sidney Street (Photo #99)

Designed in 1890, the red brick St. Agnes Church features an Italian Renaissance basilica entrance employing a pedimented narthex flanked by bell towers. The six by three bay, one and one-half story nave is articulated by engaged corbelled brick pilaster-strips, and features paired, round-arched leaded glass windows on each bay. The west elevation of the gabled-roof nave is articulated by small side chapels on alternating bays, whereas the east elevation employs a single centrally-located polygonal projecting chapel. The interior features a high barrel-vaulted nave and rows of Corinthian columns.

Ebenezer Epiphany Church (formerly Deutsche Evangelical), 2921 McNair Avenue (Photo #100)

Designed in the Gothic Revival style in 1891, the Church features a small nave with second story choir loft, southwest corner bell tower, and five sided projecting choir on the west elevation. The four by three bay nave is articulated by stone capped brick buttresses; leaded-glass lancet windows are employed on each bay. Corbelled brick cornices are featured on the north and south elevations and a distinctive stepped corbelled brick cornice is also featured on the McNair Avenue elevation. The buttressed projecting entrance bay is distinguished by a transomed basket-arched entrance with stone keystone, and a large lancet window with stone tracery above. A one story brick school constructed just south of the church in 1888 features segmentally arched four-over-four windows and a heavily corbelled cornice.

Church of the Nazarene (formerly Good Shepherd Episcopal), 2838 Salena Street (Photo #101)

Designed in 1899, the unpretentious Gothic Revival Church of the Nazarene features a simple one story nave without choir loft. The four bay by three bay gabled nave is articulated by raised brick pilaster-strips, and employs leaded glass lancet windows on the north, south and east (primary) elevations. The Salena Street elevation is further embellished on the central bay by a lancet-arched entrance and ocular window with Gothic tracery in the form of a cross above.

Fremont School, 2840 Wisconsin Avenue (Photo #102)

Designed in 1896 by architect A. H. Kirchner, the school is richly embellished with Classical Revival detailing. (Two wings constructed in 1963 flank the structure.) The red brick school features a projecting pedimented entrance pavilion employing a monumental round-arched entrance flanked by two pedimented windows with terra cotta surrounds and consoles. Above the second story balustraded balcony, bays are articulated by engaged brick pilasters with ornamental terra cotta Ionic capitals. Round-arched windows are employed on the upper stories, and the projecting entrance is capped by a denticulated pediment. A terra cotta panel emblazoned with the institution's name is centered between the second and third stories, and a similar panel featuring the date is centered in the pediment. Rectangular sash windows with projecting terra cotta lintels supported by scrolled consoles are employed on the outer bays. All transomed twelve-over-twelve windows on the Wisconsin Avenue and rear elevations have been boarded.

Shepard School, 3450 Wisconsin Avenue (Photo #103)

The Jacobethan-style Shepard School was designed in 1905 by St. Louis School Board architect William B. Ittner. The picturesque structure is embellished with a variety of materials including red and brown brick diaper bond brickwork on the second story, heavy stone door and window surrounds, copper verge boarding at each gable end, and red clay tile roof. The "H"-plan design features a projecting central entrance bay employing a transomed basket-arch entrance enframed by stone quoining, and a stone enframed bay window above. The tripartite second story bay window is "supported" by carved stone brackets featuring gargoyles below, and is further embellished by a small stone carving of a sitting child in a niche above. Three-over-three sash windows with stone sills are employed on the flanking recessed bays, and on the side and rear elevations of the Shepard School.

Monroe School, 3641 Missouri Avenue (Photo #104)

Designed in 1898 by architect William B. Ittner, the school is a three story red brick structure with a low clay-tiled hipped roof featuring an "H" plan and restrained Classical Revival detailing. The central entrance of the eighteen bay principal elevation is distinguished by a deeply recessed corbelled compound arch with heavy stone imposts. The central bays are further articulated by a slightly projecting second and third story pedimented pavilion. Stone spandrels are employed on upper story windows of the projecting pavilion. Basement story windows are horizontally separated from the upper stories by a stone water table on all elevations, and feature tall brick jack arches with stone spandrels. Individual hipped dormers projecting from the roof employ three-pane windows. An ornamental brick string course divides the first and second stories, and a denticulated stone cornice caps each elevation.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The Benton Park District is eligible for listing in the National Register according to Criteria A and C and is significant in the following areas: ARCHITECTURE: District building types and styles illustrate the evolution of a large, unimproved section of the City Commons into an urban immigrant neighborhood. Constructed over a period of approximately 87 years (circa 1848-1935), the large well-preserved housing stock unified by similar scale and materials provides an unusually good representative inventory of the major trends in St. Louis working- and middle-class domestic architecture. District buildings of all types are distinguished by the quality of their materials, workmanship and vernacular and high art design. Principal styles represented include Greek Revival, Italianate, Mansard, Romanesque, Queen Anne and Classical Revivals, and Craftsman. The large Lemp Brewery (constructed circa 1874-1912) is an unusually cohesive brick complex articulated in Italian Renaissance Revival style. The 1890s Consumer's Griesedieck Brewery employs Romanesque Revival. Both breweries are significant as well-preserved examples of St. Louis' few remaining brewery structures. INDUSTRY: Major employers of neighborhood residents, the District's two breweries contributed to the growth of a leading St. Louis industry and were two of about twenty-five large local breweries whose combined beer production made St. Louis the nation's largest brewing center before Prohibition. Reopened in 1933, the Griesedieck Brewing Co., continued production until the late 1960s. The breweries are two of only five known historic brewery complexes that survive in the city.

District boundaries were determined on the north by Gravois Avenue, a busy eight-lane thoroughfare (Photos #105, #106) which is the southern boundary of the McKinley Fox National Register District; on the west by Jefferson Avenue, a busy eight-lane street (Photo #107); on the south by South Broadway, another wide eight-lane thoroughfare (Photos #108, #109); and on the east by Interstate Highway 55.

Reflecting the steady rise in German immigration, St. Louis' static population began increasing at an annual average of over 6000 persons in the 1840s and surged to close to 11,000 persons yearly in the 1850s.¹ During this period of dramatic growth, the city began selling the common fields, a large tract of undeveloped pasture land lying outside the western boundary of city limits, then at 18th Street.² Included in the Commons, the Benton Park District attracted purchasers who anticipated the city's expansion westward from the early riverfront settlements and began platting subdivisions in the 1850s and 1860s as the tide of immigration was swelling. Many of the District's small subdivisions south of Arsenal Street represented quarter sections of the Commons' square blocks which had been surveyed and platted by the city in 1836 (Fig. 1). Subdivisions north of Arsenal to Victor Street, however, conformed to boundaries of the 18th century French common fields and were platted as long vertical east-west strips originally measuring 2 x 40 or 4 x 40 arpents (Fig. 1-right); several retained names of French landholders such as Lami, Barsaloux and Bacanne.

Benton Park's ample supply of available land offered immigrants opportunity to build on lots at low cost and escape congested conditions in the inner city. A typical 25-front-foot lot could be purchased for $200 to $300 with one-quarter or one-sixth cash payment required and three to six year mortgages. Deferred payment could also be secured by Deed of Trust drawing 6% annual interest. In some subdivisions, property could be leased for as little as $25 per annum for three lots. Building materials were easily procured in numerous small neighborhood brickyards producing handmade brick and in nearby lumber yards. Early settlement was scattered throughout the District interrupted by numerous sinkholes, quarries, brickyards and three cemeteries. The largest of the cemeteries occupied the site of the present Benton Park reserved for public burial by the city in 1842 (Fig. 1-upper right). Sections of the District were also riddled with natural limestone caves which early attracted brewers to the area who used the caves for storage. During the 1850s, the ale firm of English & McIlrose occupied a cave just east of Benton Park fronting on Arsenal Street where they stored beer and operated a beer garden called Mammoth Cave and Park (Fig. 1). At the northwest corner of Cherokee and DeMenil Place, German-born Adam Lemp, St. Louis' first producer of lager beer, filled spacious caverns on the site with ice chopped from the Mississippi River to keep the lagering beer at the proper temperature (Fig. 1). Caves existing around the southwest corner of Lemp and Shenandoah Streets (later the site of the Consumers/Griesdedieck brewery) were also utilized by breweries at an early date.

The majority of the earliest houses are small one-story frame or brick structures built in the 1850s and 1860s by German bricklayers, brickmakers, carpenters and masons living in the District; a smaller number rise two stories. Typical of similar immigrant working-class neighborhoods on the north and south sides of the city, the houses illustrate vernacular building types which are among the oldest and fewest remaining domestic structures in the city (Photos #9-center through 19). District Creole Cottage house types (Photos #17, #18)--also built by Germans in rural out-state Missouri--are similar in form to 18th and early 19th century houses built by French settlers in St. Louis. Most of Benton Park's examples were constructed by Germans; one was owned by a French-born resident. 2835 Missouri (Photo #15, a single slope-roof type known locally as a flounder) is of interest as it can be identified as the work of a southside carpenter and building firm, Mueller & Ringling, who purchased the lot in 1865 and subsequently sold the house and lot to laborer John Kempfer in 1867 for $800. 1931 President, a one-story, five-bay brick house of 1858-60 atypically displays a fine, classically detailed exterior front door--no doubt the work of carpenter/brickmaker Rudolph Staentz who occupied the house. In other ways, however, the house conforms to a neighborhood one- or two-story type featuring a side-gabled or low hipped roof, segmentally arched windows, brick dentilling and pedimented dormers (Photos #10, #11).

By 1865, the neighborhood had grown sufficiently to require the removal of the cemetery occupying the site of Benton Park. The following year, the site was designated a public park, later named for Senator Thomas Hart Benton, an early Missouri statesman who had died in 1855. During the next decade, the city began improving the park with trees, a rustic stone bridge and tunnel and an artificial lake which was lined with cement to prevent water from draining into the caves below (Photo #111-upper left). Concordia Park (now Cherokee Park) privately owned by John Withnell, a wealthy English builder and speculator, was opened by the mid 1860s on a large tract of land Withnell had purchased from the city in 1843 two blocks southeast of Benton Park (Photo #111-lower left). Concerts were offered in the summer months and the park became a popular neighborhood picnic area. A third, public open space was reserved for a market when the Second City Subdivision of the City Commons was opened in 1855. Now called Carnegie Place, it fronts on Indiana Street one-half block south of Benton Park.

Early industry which drew German laborers to the District included Lemp's Western Brewery, established on Cherokee Street by 1864, the Missouri Glass Works, located just west of Cherokee Park in City Blocks 1531 and 1534 (Fig. 1), a ropewalk near Arsenal and 2nd Carondelet (now 18th Street) and several brickyards (Photo #110, #111). A number of dairymen such as Meinhardt Siemer at 1927-29 Lami found the District's semi-rural, low density features suitable for small dairy operations. The founding in 1867 of St. Francis de Sales German Catholic Church was prompted by several families of dairymen in the area who found the distance too great to attend the mother church, St. Peter & Paul's, northeast of the District. When the first church was completed in 1868 just west of the District at Lynch and Ohio (Photo #112-upper right), the parish already numbered "800 souls."³ St. Agatha, a second daughter church of St. Peter & Paul's was established in 1871 at Ninth and Utah Streets to accommodate the growing numbers of German Catholics living in the southeastern section of the neighborhood. German Lutherans were also represented in Benton Park at an early date. Concordia Publishing House, the official publication house of the Missouri Synod had completed a printing building on the corner of Indiana and Miami Streets by 1874 and several additions were constructed over the next seventy-five years. (The primary facades of the publishing buildings are now unfortunately refaced). Holy Cross Evangelical Lutheran Church (Missouri Synod) completed a church in 1867 one block west of Jefferson Avenue that served the Benton Park neighborhood. Another German Protestant denomination, St. Paul's Methodist Church was established in 1874 at 2915 McNair, later the site of another German church.

Purchasers of lots in Ida Warren's Subdivision of the Petit Tract (a long narrow addition opened in 1864 along the southside of Crittenden between Lemp and Indiana Streets) included a group of French-born immigrants who had come to this country to establish a communist colony. Founded and led by Etienne Cabet (1788-1856), a French social theorist and reformer, the Icarians, as they were called, first settled in Nauvoo, Illinois in 1848 occupying homes left by the Mormons. In 1856, when Cabet and some 180 of his loyal followers (Cabetistes) were exiled from Nauvoo as a result of internal dissension, the Cabetistes moved to St. Louis. Despite the set-back due to Cabet's untimely death in St. Louis, November 8, 1856, the Icarians acquired land and buildings in 1858 on a former estate outside the city limits at Cheltenham (razed). They remained loyal to their leader's teachings and for a short time the colony thrived, assisted with financial aid and new recruits from France where they were recognized as the only legitimate Icarian colony. However, in 1859, two rival political factions developed and the minority group of forty-two persons, many of whom were the most skillful craftsmen, left the colony. With only eight adult men and seven women remaining, the colony completely disbanded in 1864.⁴

At least twelve Icarian families purchased lots between 1864-66 in three City Blocks of Ida Warren's Petit Tract. Seven extant houses and one manufacturing building identified to date were constructed by members of the group; quite likely others exist. Ranging in date from 1865-1891, the houses illustrate a variety of building traditions in the neighborhood. Stone mason Claude Juppier drew upon Greek Revival forms for the first story of his four-bay house at 1950 Crittenden where he was living by 1865; he had added a fashionable dormered mansard story by 1875 (Photo #8). Carpenter Edward Maritz, who like Juppier had been a member of the original group who had emigrated to Nauvoo with Cabet, built a modest frame house in the 1860s at 3015 McNair. Joseph Loiseau, a perfumer, lived at 3010 Wisconsin (Photo #17), a frame Creole Cottage he had built by 1865. Both architect Charles Mesnier (Secretary for the Icarian colony) and Etienne Boileau, a perfume merchant, purchased houses built for them in the 1870s by the St. Louis Mutual House Building Co. #3 (3016 Wisconsin and 3004-06 McNair (rear) (Photo #32) respectively). Two 1880s Italianate houses were built at 3016 and 3014 McNair by the Sarot and Juppier Families (Photo #38). Although the 1860s frame house built by carpenter/stair builder Hypolite LeCouteur at 3014 Wisconsin is gone, his stair manufacturing building at 3015-17 Salena is standing, as is the 1891 new family home at 1945 Arsenal.

In the mid 1860s, some of the District's more prosperous German residents began building new homes in the fashionable Italianate style introduced in St. Louis upper middle-class Anglo-American neighborhoods in the early 1850s. The largest of the houses were clustered along DeMenil Place where brewer Adam Lemp had built a large house by 1851 (demolished) and opened a two block subdivision in 1855. 3333 DeMenil (Photo #21) constructed about 1865 by Frederick Heitkamp, proprietor of Concordia Park exhibits round and segmentally arched windows with ornamental brick hoods, a bold projecting wood cornice and filigree iron work. Across the street, the Jacob Feickert house of 1868, now missing its original front porch, (Photo #20) is another early Italianate house. This house later became the home of William J. Lemp (son of brewery founder Adam) following his marriage to Julia Feickert, a daughter of the wealthy saloon owner. Greek Revival, however, lingered on in other large 1860s District houses. The most richly articulated example, 3352 DeMenil Place (listed in the National Register), features an imposing 1861 facade (Photo #6) which Dr. Nicholas DeMenil added to an 1848 house built by Henri Chatillon. More modest expressions of Greek Revival are found in five-bay, two-story stone linteled houses at 3309 DeMenil constructed by wagon manufacturer Jacob Kern around 1865 and 3326 Missouri (Photo #7), William Drosten's house of 1867. Born in Bonn, Germany, in 1815, Drosten was apprenticed to his father's confectionery trade and then served in the German army. After the failure of the 1848 Revolution, he emigrated to St. Louis in 1849. By the time he built his house in Benton Park, he had acquired sufficient wealth in his confectionery business to retire and devote much of his time to cultivation of rare plants and flowers (Photo #110).

During the 1870s and the 1880s the Italianate Style proliferated throughout the District in buildings of all sizes and types. The new, 1875 Firehouse #1 at 2413-11 McNair (Photo #39) along with contemporary Lemp Brewery buildings (Photo #92 & Fig. 2) displayed ornamental brick corbelling and wood brackets characteristic of the style. Residential examples ranged from modest working-class brick houses of one- or two-stories where stylistic expression often was limited to corbelled brick cornices that imitated Italianate wood brackets (Photos #36, #37) to larger private houses of the middle class such as 2210 Miami (Photo #22-foreground) built in 1879 by Henry Vohlkamp, clerk and later officer in the William J. Lemp Brewing Co., and 2301 S. 18th, the 1882 house of George J. Fritz, proprietor of Central Iron Works (Photo #24). 3652 Jefferson Avenue (Photo #25), begun in 1879 as a private house for commission merchant Henry B. Eggers was completed as the Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites by a group of Jewish societies.

As demand for neighborhood housing increased, speculatively built rows of townhouses and larger multi-family buildings began to appear, particularly in the largely undeveloped area north of Lynch Street. In 1877, real estate agent William Sellers erected two groups of attached two-story, three-bay Italianate houses at 2719-07 McNair (Photo #29) and 2120-28 Sidney where he resided. Similar rows were constructed by French-born District resident John Beaumont, a contractor, at 2301 Lynch, 2714-16 Jefferson and 2013-50 Sidney (Photo #30). Three of Beaumont's houses on Sidney and one on Lynch still retain a brick, one-story, gabled-roof rear extension, possibly a kitchen (Photo #31), which are atypical of the District; they are easily distinguished from the common two-story rear extension with a single-slope roof found on adjacent 2032-36 Sidney built in 1875 by another contractor (Photo #31-far left).

Early evidence of planned development can be found in City Block 1405 where the Cimbria Mutual Building Association imposed deed restrictions on lots, dictating a set-back of twenty-five feet from the sidewalk and prohibiting industrial land use found elsewhere in the District. The block attracted German merchants, industrialists and professionals seeking to emulate residential qualities of middle-class, native-born subdivisions outside the immigrant strongholds. In 1873, the Association began selling twenty-five front feet unimproved lots for $800 to $1000 each; by 1875, four Italianate two-story, three-bay houses were standing on generous two or three lot parcels on the northside of Sidney Street near the corner of Salena; 2011 Sidney was occupied by Cimbria's president, John Paul, Jr., a dry goods merchant. 2007 Sidney, next door, was built by Ludwig Frederick Hammer, proprietor of one of St. Louis' early photography studios. Born in Wuerttemberg, Germany in 1834, Hammer came to St. Louis in 1856 and began working as a tanner. He then learned the art of making daguerreotypes and photographs and by 1869 he was operating his own gallery. In 1890, Hammer founded the Hammer Dry Plate Co., whose products were distributed nationally. Cimbria's restrictions also shaped the character of the north half of City Block 1405 along Victor Street where somewhat smaller houses built by various owners in the early 1880s maintain the set-back and Italianate styling of those on Sidney (Photo #27). At least one, 2048 Victor, was constructed by the Cimbria Association and sold in 1878, with its 60 front foot parcel for $5625 to Hermann A. Steinwender, partner in a wholesale wines and liquor firm.

During the 1880s and 1890s, the Mansard Style eclipsed the closely related Italianate mode in popularity. Together, the two styles represent the largest stylistic group in the District, accounting for nearly half the buildings. Mansard Style houses of one or two stories are found on almost every District block, often appearing in sizable concentrations (Photos #48, #50, #51). Frequently mansard roofs were added to older houses as a means of gaining extra floor space in a stylish form. According to a 19th century report, the Mansard or Second Empire Style which first appeared in St. Louis in 1866 had become a familiar sight a decade later in middle-class residential sectors. Very few Mansard Style houses were standing in Benton Park before 1875 when Compton & Dry's Pictorial St. Louis was published (Photos #110, #111, #112). Claude Juppier's mansard addition to 1950 Crittenden was in place by that date (Photo #8) and 1826 Lami boasted the new style (Photo #23). Both of these early examples employ flared mansards and round headed dormers--features which are generally replaced by straight-sided mansards with gabled or hipped dormers in later houses. As in other immigrant neighborhoods, the rate of change was slow; conservative building traditions paralleled the Italianate and Mansard styles, illustrated in the vernacular classicism of 2438 McNair, built in 1876 as a saloon and flats by Peter Sauerwein (Photo #14) and 2800 Indiana of 1879 (Photo #13).

The largest single concentration of 1880s and 1890s buildings was constructed in the north part of the District between Lynch, Victor, Indiana and 18th Streets (see Architectural Survey Map). Although subdivided and platted earlier, the land had remained unimproved--the site of brickyards, quarry ponds and the earthwork fortifications of a Civil War fort. When development was finally undertaken, stringent deed restrictions protected some of the blocks from the characteristic Benton Park mix of land use. Restrictions on lots fronting on Senate Street (Photo #59), for example, prohibited the use of buildings for schools, churches, beer saloons, meat shops and groceries in addition to industry of any kind. Houses were required to be constructed of brick, set back twenty feet from the curb, to rise at least two stories (not excluding a one-story mansard) and contain a minimum of five rooms. The increased size of many buildings in this section of the District, as well as examples on other streets, reflect the growing prosperity of German immigrant owners who erected them as rental property and private homes. Typical multi-family income-producing buildings are illustrated in the numerous two-story, four-bay Mansard houses (Photos #41, #42, #45, #48, #51) and in attached rows of two- or three-bay townhouses (Photos #51, #54).

Three large buildings anchoring corners at Senate and Lemp, and Sidney and Salena are representative of real estate investment patterns of the period as well as new Queen Anne style elements which began to appear in late 1880s Mansard buildings which exhibit increased ornamentation and facades broken by projecting bays, picturesque dormers, gables and towers. Built in 1888, 1901 Senate (Photo #59) was a long-term rental property of the Freund brothers, prominent southside bakers from Austria, one of whom was a District resident at the time. The building's window hoods and string-courses mark an early use of red terra cotta, a new material for ornamental detailing which was first manufactured locally by the Winkle Terra Cotta Co. in 1883. Another Freund-built property, 1956-58 Sidney (Photo #65-left) displays exuberant Queen Anne gabled dormers trimmed with terra cotta and stone. The fine ornamental cast iron storefront is also very functionally handled with broad expanses of street level display windows. The iron was fabricated by Scherpe & Koken, a southside architectural iron firm founded in 1880 whose work is represented in other District storefronts. On the opposing corner (Photo #65-right), a sizeable investment property financed by Ernest Hartmann was built in 1896 for $10,000. With typical first story storefront and flats above, the building features decorative red terra cotta panels around the entrances and a mansard roof punctuated with stepped-gabled dormers. Plans were drawn up by E. Jungendorf & Co., a prominent local architectural firm with a distinguished record for designs of breweries and large private houses. Hartmann, a German-born tanner who lived across the street at 2011 Sidney, also constructed two industrial buildings in the 1890s at 1926-28 Gravois and 1905-07 Shenandoah which housed the E. Hartmann Hide & Leather Co.

By the 1890s, two principal commercial strips were flourishing along Cherokee Street and Jefferson Avenue offering almost every shopping need of the neighborhood. The storefronts, with flats above, provided a catalogue of St. Louis' cast iron industries. Numerous examples of seven or more of the city's leading firms are represented including Pullis Brothers, Gerst Brothers, Globe Iron and Foundry, St. Louis Architectural Iron, Christopher & Simpson, Union Iron and Scherpe & Koken (Photos #63, #64, #82, #84 through #88).

With large numbers of buildings designed in Queen Anne, Romanesque and Classical Revival styles, the Benton Park District illustrates one of St. Louis' finest and most complete inventories of ornamental detailing in terra cotta, pressed brick, stamped metal and cast iron--materials produced by local industries whose expansion in the last two decades of the 19th century coincided with growing late Victorian taste for embellishment. Some of the buildings are the work of German-born and trained architects who were heavily patronized by middle-class Germans. The majority, though, were built by south St. Louis contractors and builders of German descent whose superb craftsmanship and command of materials are always in evidence. Most prevalent, illustrated in buildings of all sizes and costs, is the wide variety of ornamental brickwork that defines cornice lines, parapets, windows and doors (Photos #61, #66, #67, #68, #70). A particularly artistic use of brick detailing distinguishes the row of eight detached double-family houses at 3001-19 Indiana built in 1896-97 (Photo #66). They were designed by Ernst Preisler, a southside architect who received his training in Vienna.

A group of large, single-family houses advantageously sited on the east edge of Benton Park in the 3100 Block of Illinois stands in a small half-block subdivision platted in 1888 as the Benton Park Addition by E. Henry Vordtreide, President of the St. Louis Cultivated Mushroom Co. Earlier, the Company had acquired the land to cultivate mushrooms in the caves below where Ezra English had stored beer for many years. Deed restrictions attached to lots in the Benton Park Addition dictated houses two stories high, uniformly set back fifteen feet. Restrictions against dairies, brick-yards, livery stables, cattle yards, blacksmith shops, and tanning establishments set the land use apart from other District subdivisions where such activities were carried on. However, buildings were not limited to single-family use as was the case in the more exclusive private places of the city. Except for the Schollmeyer building (listed in the National Register) containing storefront and flats at the corner of Arsenal, the houses were owner-occupied. Designed primarily in the Queen Anne and Romanesque Revival styles, they were abreast of the latest architectural fashions in the city, Queen Anne having been first introduced in the mid-1880s (Photo #57). Several are embellished with unusually fine ornamental brick and terra cotta (Photo #58). Typical residents included Charles G. Keller, collector at Green Tree Brewery (3118 Illinois); leather goods merchant, Edward Drozda (3122 Illinois); and Ernst Schoenle, assistant secretary at Mueller Coal Co. (3128 Illinois). Large revival style houses can also be found on various other District streets. Subdivision-platter Vordtreide's own 1873 Italianate house at 2019 Sidney (Photo #52) was apparently updated in a mansarded Queen Anne fashion. It features a pair of tall double chimneys installed with a decorative red terra cotta panel perhaps manufactured by the St. Louis Terra Cotta Co. which Vordtreide incorporated. A man of diverse business interests, Vordtreide was also Secretary of the Green Tree Brewery, once located at Sidney and Ninth Streets a few blocks east of his home.

Improvements to Benton Park had steadily progressed since 1873 when Edward Krausnick, the park's first horticulturist and landscape gardener began introducing "rare trees, shrubs and flowers." Park Commissioner Eugene Weigel noted in 1881 that "in general design and in the beauty and composition of its varied flower beds, it stands unsurpassed even by its aristocratic rival, Lafayette Park." Botany teachers brought their students to the park where a green house was maintained which supplied plants to all of the southside parks. Described by a contemporary as the "pride of the adjacent south St. Louis population,...admired by strangers for its well-shaded and undulating grounds, displaying a varied scenery," Benton Park, in addition to its landscape features, offered popular recreation such as summer concerts and boating. The present bridge was constructed over the lake in 1889⁵ (Photo #1).

The gray granite obelisk which stands in Benton Park today is a poignant symbol of the District's German heritage although its meaning has been lost to many. Erected in 1882, at the peak of German immigration and ethnic consciousness in the city, the monument commemorated the achievements of Friedrich Hecker, a German refugee and revolutionist who, like District resident William Drosten and many other St. Louis Germans, fled his country after the uprising of 1848. Although a resident of Belleville, Illinois across the Mississippi, Hecker became a leader in public affairs of the St. Louis German element. His strong abolitionist views were supported by most St. Louis Germans, including Benton Park residents such as William J. Lemp, a member of the Third Regiment, U.S. Reserve Corps, William Drosten who contributed thousands of dollars to the Union cause, Ludwig Hammer who served in the Tanner's Company of the Home Guard, and many others. The design of German-trained architect Ernst C. Janssen of St. Louis, the shaft is engraved with two dates, 1848 and 1861, marking the German Revolution and the American Civil War. When the monument was dedicated October 1, 1882 (a year after Hecker's death), a parade led by veterans of both the German and American wars made its way from the Central Turnhalle downtown to Benton Park where a crowd of 15,000 assembled for the ceremonies.⁶

Four churches, two parochial schools and three public schools erected in the District between 1884 and 1905 were clear indicators of the neighborhood's growth. Until Fremont School was completed in 1897 at 2840 Wisconsin, children of District families walked to Lyon and the old Shepard Schools east of the District, and to Garfield School on the west side of Jefferson Avenue. In 1899, when enrollment already had reached 857 pupils, an additional seven classrooms were built at the rear of Fremont's original ten room and kindergarten building. The handsomely articulated Classical Revival school in red brick and terra cotta was designed by School Board architect A. H. Kirchner (Photo #102). Benton Park's second public school, Monroe, was erected in 1898 in the south end of the District at the corner of Broadway and Missouri for the relief of the old Shepard School District east of Broadway. It is one of the early designs of William B. Ittner, Commissioner of School Buildings (1897-1910), whose reforms in school design brought him national prominence and commissions for schools in twenty-nine states by the end of his career. Opened in September, 1899, the school (containing eighteen classrooms, a kindergarten and gymnasium) was attended by 1161 students the first year. Typical of Ittner's artistic considerations in school design, the building is set off by spacious landscaped grounds and features a dominant central entrance motif composed of an expansive arched doorway and pedimented projecting bay (Photo #104). The third public school, Shepard (1905), was also designed by Ittner, this time in the Jacobethan style for which the architect is best known nationally. The son of a brick manufacturer, Ittner's interest in the artistic potential of brick is displayed in the fine diaper patterning of the second story (Photo #103). Serving the south sector of Benton Park, Shepard School at 3450 Wisconsin was named for Elihu H. Shepard, a nineteenth century St. Louis educator who opened a subdivision in 1860 adjoining the school site on the south.

Three of Benton Park's four churches represented new congregations organized in the late 19th century as population in the area swelled. All, however, tended to be small to medium-sized as many District residents attended large Lutheran and Catholic ethnic churches outside the District. Two were founded as missions of Protestant English-speaking groups. The earliest, Olive Branch Congregational, organized in 1884 as a mission Sunday School, dedicated a Gothic style chapel in 1885 at 2201 Sidney. The church was enlarged in 1898 with a Romanesque style addition admirably scaled to the residential context (Photos #98). Good Shepherd Episcopal Mission Church, a small Gothic, 1899 building at 3833 Salena (Photo #101) had moved into Benton Park from the Soulard neighborhood where it was first established in 1871. St. Agnes Catholic Church (1890) was founded by Irish-born Father Constantine Smith to serve the needs of Irish and Anglo-American families in the area. Designed by architect James McNamara, the church is articulated in a Renaissance Revival style; its distinctive twin towers are a neighborhood landmark (Photo #99). A new parish school was opened at 2216 Sidney in 1905 with 450 pupils, taught by the Sisters of St. Joseph. (2049 Sidney was converted to a convent for the Sisters in 1906.) The Deutsche Evangelische Ebenezer Church was established in Benton Park in 1886 in a church formerly used by St. Paul's German Methodist congregation. Ebenezer was a member of the German Evangelical Synod of North America, an independent Evangelical church founded in 1840 near St. Louis by German missionaries. The present church, built in 1891 in a Gothic Revival style, features fine ornamental brickwork characteristic of District housing (Photo #100). The church's one-story brick parochial school of 1888 at 2921 McNair served 100 students in 1899. Classes were taught in German until the school closed with the advent of World War I.

Over the years, breweries had been a major source of employment for District residents. Largely through contributions of St. Louis German brewers, Missouri was the nation's sixth largest manufacturer of beer by 1863--a position held by the state into the twentieth century. At least six establishments were within easy walking distance in 1864 when William J. Lemp moved the Western Brewery, founded by his father, to Cherokee Street. Anticipating rapid growth, Lemp planned his new brewery buildings so that additions could be made with little inconvenience.⁷ This was demonstrated in the earliest extant building, a malt house, constructed three stories high around 1874 and vertically divided by rusticated pilaster strips into three-bay modular units (Fig. #2-right); in 1887, three stories were added to the original structure (Fig. #3, Photo #92). The Italian Renaissance style featuring round-arched windows, pilaster strips and corbelled brick cornices employed in the earliest buildings was maintained for major structures throughout the nearly forty-year building history of the brewery (Photos #92-#96 and Architectural Survey Map). By the mid 1870s, the Western Brewery was St. Louis' largest producer of beer with annual sales totaling $1,250,000 and employment numbering 150 men. Bottled beer was shipped in large quantities to South America, China, Japan, Australia and some exported to London, Paris and even cities in Germany.

At the time of the Columbian Exposition in 1893, St. Louis was one of the nation's leading brewery centers producing all except 52,000 of Missouri's total annual barrel product of 2,014,086. Lemp's annual output at that time exceeded 300,000 barrels making it one of the two largest of St. Louis' top twenty-five breweries. One of the newly erected buildings in 1893, the Ice Plant (Photo #95) housed an electric light plant and was fitted with the most modern refrigerating machines. The brewery operated its own rail line, the Western Cable, that connected all buildings of the main plant with the shipping yards near the river and the major railroads.

The continued expansion and growth of the William J. Lemp Brewing Co., as it was called after 1892, required the construction of new buildings eventually covering five city blocks. Some of the turn-of-the-century buildings were designed by architects Widmann, Walsh & Boisselier, specialists in brewery work with numerous commissions outside Missouri. Others were the work of Guy Norton, an architect retained by the brewery. The impressive group of granary stacks under construction in 1905 were built by the Barnett & Record Construction Co. of Minneapolis that held patents for grain bins (Photo #94). The brickwork for the bins and other Lemp buildings was executed by the Hartmann Bricklaying & Contracting Co. founded by German-born Henry Hartmann whose office and home were located within the District at the southwest corner of Lynch and 18th Streets.

The 1900 census confirmed a report in 1893 that a "very large proportion of the inhabitants in some of the southern wards [were] earning their livelihood wholly or in great part through these colossal [beer] manufacturing concerns." An impressive number of District residents were employed in the beer industry as brewers, bottlers, foremen, carpenters, coopers, drivers, packers, blacksmiths, machinists and laborers. Frequently, sons of brewers worked as bottlers. In addition to Lemp, a smaller brewery at the southwest corner of Lemp and Shenandoah Streets offered employment opportunities. This complex of buildings was constructed over a period of years by successive brewers. Under the ownership of Miller Brothers Brewery, the Brewhouse was erected at 2317 Lemp in 1887. When Consumers Brewery purchased the site in 1896, buildings at 2313-11 Lemp and 1900 Shenandoah were added between 1896-1899, most likely designed by Ernst Janssen, architect for one of their depots (Photos #89, #90, Fig. #4). One of the owners of Consumers in 1902 was German-born Henry Griesedieck, Jr. (1854-1914) whose father, Anton, operated a brewery on the same site in 1878-81. In 1911, Henry Griesedieck, Jr. and his sons, Anton, Henry E., and Raymond founded the Griesedieck Brothers Brewery Co. and acquired the Consumers Brewery. The company immediately prospered and its bottle beer sales had reached number one position in the St. Louis market when Prohibition halted production.⁹

By the early 20th century, the Benton Park District exhibited all the characteristics of a developed urban immigrant neighborhood with public and parochial schools, ethnic churches, a Turnverein (razed), numerous beer gardens, corner saloons, groceries, drug stores, bakeries and breweries along with smaller industries. While predominately German, numbers of Czechs and Irish also lived there. The South Jefferson Avenue Merchants' Association was organized in 1900 at a meeting held at the Benton Park Hall at 2912 South Jefferson. The founders were convinced that the "old sleepy ways of doing business" could not compete with the more "wide awake" marketing offered in downtown establishments; those who viewed new merchants with suspicion did not realize that variety "not only keeps shoppers at home and money in local circulation but also attracts other residents to the neighborhood." Many streets in the area remained unpaved while public improvement money was being directed to the West End. Public transit in the neighborhood was also deemed second-rate. By 1906, the Association (renamed the Southwestern Mercantile Association) had grown dramatically in numbers, scope and influence. Street railway service had improved and "splendid marts of every description" were conducted by up-to-date proprietors. The Association had played an active part in the passage of city-wide legislation dealing with garnishment, excessive license charges and railroad freight rates. It was strongly in favor of Charter Revision, the "Bond Issue" and strenuously opposed to the granting of a franchise for a street railway in Forest Park.

The last major change in architectural style appeared shortly after the turn-of-the-century when District buildings began to show influence of the Craftsman aesthetic. A six-family flat and store designed in 1906 by architect Gustav Wuest for baker Joseph Machatschek illustrates this new direction (Photo #74). Ornamental brickwork and bracketed wood cornices so popular in the nineteenth century have been replaced here by a simple cornice of white terra cotta, also sparsely used as decorative accents and as coping on the parapet. New soldier-course brick lintels head some of the windows and the cast iron storefront has disappeared. The brick and stucco saloon built in 1911 by Anheuser Busch Brewery (Photo #75) exhibits similar characteristics with its simple green, glazed-brick piers around the entrance. The tiled roof overhang became a popular feature in the teens.

Craftsman-detailed flats filled in remaining vacant lots or replaced 19th century buildings in the twenties (Photos #76, #77). Residents' occupations continued along lines established earlier such as laborer, machinist, factory worker, foreman, salesman and clerk, but with the notable absence of brewery related jobs. An occasional Craftsman or Bungalow style, single-family house appeared such as 2926 Indiana, the circa 1926 home of Carl Weis (Photo #79). The sons of German-born Joseph Weis, partner in the Weis & Jennett Marble Co., Carl Weis and his three brothers joined the family marble business, located in the District as late as 1954. A number of Benton Park buildings display marble embellishments from the Weis & Jennett Co. Carl Weis' house features exterior window sills and front porch of marble and a colorful array of different marbles on interior window sills, baseboards and bathrooms.

In 1922, the massive Lemp Brewery complex was sold to International Shoe Co. Griesedieck Brewery reopened after Prohibition and erected major new buildings at their plant. In 1949, it ranked 35th in production among 430 breweries in the country. The first major changes in the District occurred after World War II with demolition at the eastern edge for the Ozark Expressway and the beginning of an influx of rural migrants. In 1953, the city conducted a housing survey which identified a portion of Benton Park as ideal for a model rehabilitation project. Residents agreed to make repairs to the housing stock; the city spent more than $200,000 in street re-surfacing, traffic control and park and playground improvements. Nonetheless, the neighborhood experienced a sharp decline in population between 1960 and 1975. From 1970 to 1975, more than 240 dwelling units were demolished and many more stood vacant. In 1976, Benton Park was selected as the first St. Louis location for a Neighborhood Housing Service program. By 1979, only 51 units were vacant, 35 of which were boarded, and a precedent-setting project was underway on Senate and Congress Streets--the location of the highest crime rate and the most buildings owned by absentee landlords. The houses were acquired by a single entity and successfully rehabilitated into 126 apartments.

Today, the neighborhood is a mix of new and old residents with an average age much younger than the city-wide statistics. Neighborhood groups sponsor house tours, art fairs and promote the Cherokee commercial strip. The biggest challenges for Benton Park will be the adaptive reuse of the two breweries which once attracted residents to the near South Side.
