21. (cont.) History and significance. Expand box as necessary, or add continuation pages.

The determination of national register eligibility as a contributing to a historic district requires more research as part of a larger area including Main Street (Ten Mile Drive) and Forest Hill Ave. This was surveyed as part of a training exercise and included a single cul-de-sac with 16 houses. Possible areas of significance are architecture and community development.

This one story brick four bay ranch house has a medium pitch side-gable roof with asphalt shingles. The fenestration from left to right consists of paired 6/6 windows, and entrance, and one 6/6 window. The second bay from the left features three 6/6 windows side by side that may have historically been a picture window. The third bay features an entrance with a single pane modern door with 15 divided lights. The fourth bay consists of two side by side 6/6 windows divided by a mullion. Each window has decorative shutters. The building has an exterior chimney on the right side. The building verges on the cusp of minimal traditional and ranch type. They were both popular styles during the period of construction in the 1950's.

The determination of national register eligibility as a contributing to a historic district requires more research as part of a larger area including Main Street (Ten Mile Drive) and Forest Hill Ave. This was surveyed as part of a training exercise and included a single cul-de-sac with 16 houses. Possible areas of significance are architecture and community development.

This one and one-half story three bay brick minimal traditional house is set back from the street and has a steep cross-gable/hip roof with asphalt shingles and an exterior brick chimney on the left side. The fenestration from left to right consists of a picture window with 2/2 window lights on either side of the central pane. The central bay projects slightly from the rest of the house and contains a door with fanlight and flanking ornamental windows. This bay also features a concrete stoop and blue fabric hood with decorative brick detailing above the hood. The final bay consists of 1 ½ stories. On the ground level it has a paired 1/1 window and the upper half story has a single 2/2 window.

This 1 ½ story brick house with medium pitch side gable roof with asphalt shingles has three bays and one large dormer. The dormer has a shed roof and three 1/1 windows and vinyl siding. The building has a brick chimney on the left side and a wood deck on the right side. The windows on the house are probably not original. The fenestration from left to right, consists of a 1/1 bay window with single pane sidelights and decorative knees underneath. The second bay consists of a recessed modern door with hipped shed hood. The third bay has a bay window that is the same as the first.

21. (cont.) History and significance. Expand box as necessary, or add continuation pages.

The determination of national register eligibility as a contributing to a historic district requires more research as part of a larger area including Main Street (Ten Mile Drive) and Forest Hill Ave. This was surveyed as part of a training exercise and included a single cul-de-sac with 16 houses. Possible areas of significance are architecture and community development/architecture.

This two story brick Dutch Colonial house with Cape Cod elements has gambrel roof with asphalt shingles and three bays. The left and right bays each feature a 20 light single pane window with decorative shutters. The central bay consists of a door opening with classical details and a curved two step concrete stoop. The windows are modern sympathetic replacements. The left side of the building has a brick chimney. The second story features two gabled cape cod style dormers on the left and right bays with vinyl siding and a single 6/6 window.

This one story minimal traditional brick house has three bays and a steep pitched side & front gable asphalt shingle roof. The front gable protrudes slightly from the left side of the house and a tall chimney protrudes from the roofs ridgeline. The first (from left to right) features two 4/4 windows. The second bay has a door with storm door and a stoop and shed roof hood and bracket supports. The third bay has a 6/1 window. All of the windows have decorative green shutters. The garage is connected to the house, but it looks like an addition was made to connect it to the house. The one car garage is one story with a front gabled steep pitched roof with asphalt shingles. The upper portion of the garage's front has clapboard siding.

Looks like addition built to connect main house to garage

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

21. (cont.) History and significance. Expand box as necessary, or add continuation pages.

The determination of national register eligibility as a contributing to a historic district requires more research as part of a larger area including Main Street (Ten Mile Drive) and Forest Hill Ave. This was surveyed as part of a training exercise and included a single cul-de-sac with 16 houses. Possible areas of significance are architecture and community development.
