50. Bates Street Black Haw Farm (William and Mary Kelley, owners)

Architectural Description: This is a two-story brick, ca. 1870 Italian Villa. The house has a brick foundation, hipped roof of metal standing seam, and exterior of five course common bond brick. The main facade has a projecting square tower with narrow windows on the second story. The first story of the tower has original glass and wood single-light double doors. The corner porch on the main facade is one story and has wood columns with brackets and added screen panels. The main facade has a one-story bay window with bracketed eaves. Windows are 2/2 arched wood sash with segmental brick arches and stone sills. Many of the windows retain original wood shutters. Above the main entrance is a two-light arched transom. The east facade has a bay window, porch with bracketed columns and four-panel wood door. To the east of the house is a one-story brick outbuilding and attached frame shed. The west facade also has a porch with bracketed columns, a four-panel door and bay window. At the rear is a two-story brick ell with 6/6 sash windows set within segmental arches. Leading to the porch are triple-hung windows which open to create doors to the porch. There was originally a third-story octagonal tower with a balustrade. This was destroyed by a tornado during the early 20th century. The house is sited on a bluff overlooking the Missouri River and adjacent are several early to mid-20th century barns and sheds. There is a small brick outbuilding on the property, possibly once used as a smokehouse.

Historical Data: This dwelling was built ca. 1860 by the Bates family. Bates came from Philadelphia and built the house to be a girls' school which did not work out. The house was perhaps given to Dr. Goodrich of Washington, MO. The Goodrich's were the first family to live here. After the Goodrich's, Hempilmann and Pelster families lived in the house, then the Miller family of St. Louis. The present owners have lived here since 1951. There is a print of the house in Goodspeed, page 296, when Dr. Goodrich owned the property.

208. Catawba Street - Second Christian Church

Architectural Description: This is a one-story frame church built ca. 1910. The church has a stone foundation, gable roof of asphalt shingles and exterior siding of ca. 1970 tile panels. On the main (W) facade is a gable roof entry porch with square columns. The main entrance has double doors of two-panel wood design. Windows are original 1/1 wood sash.

Historical Data: The church is listed as a "colored" church in a 1919 atlas of New Haven. According to historic maps and records, Catawba Street was primarily an area inhabited by town's African-American residents during the early 1900s. This section of town was commonly referred to as "Little Baltimore."

14. 139 Front Street

Architectural Description: This is a two-story brick, ca. 1880 commercial building. The storefront retains original frame bulkheads, engaged cast iron columns, and a recessed entrance with double doors of single-light glass and wood design. In the central bay of the upper facade is an original 4-panel door. The porch or balcony on the building has been removed. Windows are 2/2 arched wood sash with brick label molding. At the roofline is a corbelled brick cornice. On the east facade is a rebuilt staircase leading to a new wood door. Windows on the east facade have 2/2 arched sashes with segmental arches.

Historical Data: Several businesses have operated out of this building, including a jewelry store and drug store in 1895, and a barber shop and clothier business from ca. 1900 to ca. 1923.

Architectural Description: This is a one-story metal Lustron house built ca. 1947. The house has a concrete foundation, gable roof of metal panels, interior concrete and metal chimney and exterior of metal panels. The house has an incised porch with metal columns. The main entrance has a single-light glass and metal door. Windows have large central lights flanked by four-light casement windows. At the rear is an original two-bay Lustron garage with a gable roof and exterior of metal panels.

Historical Data: This dwelling is a Lustron House built ca. 1947. Between 1947 and 1950 some 2,500 of these houses were built across the country before its manufacturer went bankrupt. The house is significant as illustrating pre-fabrication and changing building technology of the post-War period.

Architectural Description: This is a two-story brick, T-plan dwelling built ca. 1865. The house has a stone and concrete foundation, gable roof of metal standing seam and interior brick chimneys. On the main facade is a partial width porch with milled columns, a milled baluster and a spindled frieze. Entrances have glass and wood doors and two-light transoms. Windows are 1/1 ca. 1970 metal sash and original 2/2 wood sash set within segmental arches. On the second story is a single-light glass and wood door. In the gable field is an elliptical vent window. At the roofline is a decorative fascia board.

Historical Data: Historic name - J.P. Altheide House (owned by Altheide at the turn of the century). John Philip Altheide owned a general store in New Haven from 1895 to 1923. The dwelling is currently owned by Edna Small Felt. A wing was added to the west facade ca. 1900.

Architectural Description: The Assumption Church is a one-story Romanesque Revival stone church built in 1924. The church has a stone foundation, gable roof of asphalt shingles and exterior of native sandstone. On the main (E) facade is a two-story rectangular bell tower with a pyramidal roof. The tower has rounded arch louvered openings and corner battlemounts. The main entrance is located in the base of the tower and features double doors of wood with leaded glass lights. Over the doors is an elliptical mosaic panel. The door is framed by cushion capitals. The church has rounded arch stained glass windows and wall buttresses. At the eaves are stone brackets. On the north facade is a stone and concrete handicapped ramp completed in 1993.

Historical Data: The Assumption Church was founded in 1853 and a church building was originally constructed in 1863. A second church was constructed in 1895, and the present church was built in 1924. The church was constructed through the efforts of Father Francis Schiller. The church cost $56,801 to build. Architects were Ludewig & Dreisoerner of St. Louis. Bernard Holthaus and Sebastian Vogel were the building's contractors.

4. Wolff Mill

Architectural Description: The original section consists of a ca. 1875, two-story gable roof brick building. This building has a stone foundation and upper facade of brick. The one-story frame section on the north facade has been removed. Most doors have been enclosed or are blocked on the north and east facades. The windows are 6/6 wood sash set within segmental arches. The roof is of metal standing seam. At the roofline there are added monitor and gable metal dormers and rooms. There is a large ca. 1900 frame and metal addition on the east facade. The south facade has original paired 4-light glass and wood doors. Windows on this facade are 4/4 sash set within segmental arches. At the eaves are brick dentils. There is a one-story frame board and batten wing on the west facade. The site also has over one dozen metal grain bins.

Historical Data: Wolff Milling Company was established in 1875 by the Wolff Brothers, and incorporated in 1888. The mill produced soft and hard wheat flour. The business operated until 1923. The Wolff Brothers owned the business until 1892.

Architectural Description: This is a ca. 1870, one-story brick commercial building with a pressed metal front. The storefront has original single-light glass and wood double doors, transoms, and cast iron pilasters. Across the width of the front is a wood awning. The upper facade has a pressed metal decorative front. There is a flat roof. The building has original Mesker cast iron columns and storefront.

Historical Data: The building was originally used as Granneman Store, established in 1872. The business, owned by Oscar Granneman, sold general merchandise and farm implements. The business operated until 1910. A clothing business and cobbler operated out of the northeast half of the building during the 1910s.

Architectural Description: This is a two-story brick I-house built in 1856. The house has a brick and stone foundation, gable roof of asphalt shingles. On the main facade is a one-story ca. 1910 porch with milled columns. The entrance has a glass and wood door and two-light transom. Windows are 6/6 wood sash with wood lintels. A second story central bay entrance has been enclosed with wood panels. At the roofline is a dentilled cornice. The gable ends have projecting brick walls. At the rear is a one-story brick ell and there is also a side brick wing.

Historical Data: The house was originally owned by Philip Miller. Miller's estate, locally referred to as "Miller's Landing," was divided and sold in 1855. A 640-acre section of Miller's Landing was platted by E.B. Hammack and Miller's son in 1856 as the original downtown district of New Haven. The house itself was constructed in 1856 by Miller's son, Samuel Clark Washington Miller.

Architectural Description: This is a two-story frame I-house built ca. 1880. The house has a stone and concrete foundation, gable roof of metal standing seam, interior wall brick chimneys and an exterior of asbestos shingles. On the main (N) facade is a two-story portico with a gable roof. The portico has original chamfered columns with brackets. The second story section retains original milled balusters. The main facade has two primary entrances with four-panel doors. A four-panel door is also located in the second story's central bay which opens onto the portico. Windows are 2/2 wood sash. At the rear is a two-story ell and one-story shed roof wing. At the rear is a ca. 1930 frame guest house and a ca. 1920 rock-faced concrete block shed. Six other farm buildings are at the site and are mid-20th century barns or earlier buildings remodeled with metal siding.

Historical Data: The property was originally composed of 426 acres and owned by F.J. North in 1878. By 1919, the property consisted of 127 acres owned by L.M. Meyer.

108. Wall Street - Langenberg Hat Co.

Architectural Description: This is a two-story brick industrial building constructed in three sections. The oldest building is located at the corner of Wall and Maupin Streets, and has three bays on the Wall Street facade. This section was constructed ca. 1900 and remodeled extensively in 1928. The building has a stone and concrete foundation and flat roof of rolled roofing. Windows on the first story were originally arched but larger ca. 1940 steel awning and hipper windows were added. The upper floor windows have been similarly altered on the Maupin Street facade. Windows on the second story of the Wall Street facade retain segmental arches but have added steel windows.

The second building was constructed ca. 1940 and has steel awning and hopper windows. This section has a full basement with an entrance in Wall Street with an overhead track door. The third section was built ca. 1940 and has a gable roof of metal standing seam, steel awning windows and a sliding track door. Windows on the middle section have metal awnings. The south wall of the third section has crimped steel panels.

Historical Data: The Langenberg Hat Co. was established in 1928. This is one of New Haven's oldest operating industries. The business is one of the city's largest employers, having been in operation since 1928.
