42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The hipped roof is broken on the east, south and west by gables capping deeply projecting two-and-a-half story bays which are square on the second story and have chamfered corners on the first. A hipped porch wraps around the front bay to the principle entry recessed in the eastern bay. The porch is supported by turned columns and ornamented by a narrow screen with turned members along the top accented by lacey filagree. In the rear, there is a one story hipped roof extension with a frame porch similarly treated to that in the front.		26. LOCAL CONTACT PERSON OR ORGANIZATION Landmarks Commission		38. 42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The flat roof has an unadorned parapet. On the east, there is a segmentally arched flush lintel. Although, most of the windows are rectilinear with no lintels and a row of headers forming the sills. The two storefronts have been enclosed with brick, and first story, front facade windows have been made smaller to accommodate apartments. Remnants of raised brick stringcoursing remain on the west facade.
43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 1 This double storefront building was constructed in 1887 for Gustave Schumacher for his grocery business. The crossed gabled roof is steeply pitched and cantilevers over the southwest corner entry forming a porch supported on wooden piers. The fenestration appears to have been altered, perhaps substituted by such arrangements as the paired windows on the front facade and the tripartite grouping on the west facade. The windows are rectilinear and are framed by simple mouldings. There is a brick veneer base on the front facade. The large addition in the rear was made in 1965.		43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE		37. Maggie A. Duncan, widow of John H. Duncan, was first listed at this address in 1889. The water permit of 1888 was in her name as well. 42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The major architectural feature of this building is the two-story, monumentally scaled front porch. The porch wraps around the east and is supported by Doric columns which run two stories in height emphasizing the chamfered corner entry of the porch. However, the principle front door flanked by sidelights is set on the other side of the facade in the western bay. There is a tripartite oriel on the second story of the west facade. Also, there is a two-story tripartite projecting bay capped by a gable with wooden shingle sheathing the gable end.
43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 2 The core of this building was constructed in 1889 for Julia Morris, a dressmaker. Charles E. Gill, of Gill's Livery, acquired this property in 1901. Mr. Gill made a substantial addition to the house in 1903 and added the monumental porch in 1916. This distinctive Eclectic building with its monumental front porch would contribute strongly to the establishment of an historic District in the Harris Addition area of high quality 19th and early 20th Century residential buildings.
44. DESCRIPTION OF ENVIRONMENT AND OUTBUILDINGS This corner property slopes west and is supported by a concrete retaining wall on the south and east. There is a two-car frame garage on the basement level on the east.

42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The front facade is framed by a wide gable end which is echoed by another wide gable capping the entry porch supported by tapered piers. This juxtaposition is characteristic of the Bungalow style. The front entry is set in the east bay and is flanked by side-lights. The windows are rectilinear and surmounted by simple raised moldings. The windows on the east and one on the west are paired. Many of the upper sashes of the windows are divided into vertical panes of glass for a decorative effect.
43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 3 This bungalow style residence was built in 1922 by David Digan who resided at 220 N. 18th St. E.A. Ettenson, a solicitor for the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, was listed at this address in the 1924 City Directory. Though later in period than most of the buildings in the Harris Addition area, this house would contribute to the establishment of an historic district because of its compatible proportion and use.
44. DESCRIPTION OF ENVIRONMENT AND OUTBUILDINGS This property slopes toward the west and is bounded on the west by an alley. In the rear of the building there is a one-car garage with asphalt shingle siding and a shed roof.

FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The front facade is dominated by a wide gable end with centered fanlight, which is echoed on the west by the gable end capping a deeply projecting two-and-a-half story square bay sporting a one-story tripartite bay on the first story. There are two front entries: one is in the eastern bay of the main front facade; while the other is recessed on the projecting bay on the west. A full front porch wraps around the west side to shelter both entries under the same porch with hipped roof supported by Doric columns.
43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 3 This house was built in 1901 as the residence of David Atkinson who was listed as "retired" in the contemporary City Directory. This late Queen Anne building has been diminished by the application of wooden and artificial siding, however, it retains its original Queen Anne profile, fanlights and projecting bay which render it a contributing member of the proposed Harris Addition historic district.
44. DESCRIPTION OF ENVIRONMENT AND OUTBUILDINGS There is a driveway along the west side of the property. The rear yard is enclosed in chainlink. The building is sited on a low bank.

The south and west main church facades of multi-toned brick are capped by wide, stepped gable ends terminating the roof's crossed gables accented by a fleche. Paired louvered windows on the belfry and the window groupings of three centered on each of the two main facades are set in pointed arch lintels with Gothic style tracery. The main entry and the entry to the office-Sunday School section on the north are set in ogee arches. The second story of this northern section is half-timbered.

43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 2 The water permit for this property was listed in the name of Joseph Hayward, Sr., the Roadmaster for the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Council Bluffs Railroad, in 1881, the same year he was first listed at this address. The two story front porch was probably added in 1909 when a building permit was taken out on the property. In spite of this large porch which obscures much of the front facade, the original profile and fenestration remain and render the building a strongly contributing member of a potential historic district in the William T. Harris neighborhood of high quality 19th and early 20th Century residential architecture.		37. CONDITION INTERIOR _____ EXTERIOR Fair

FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The fire station built in common bond is symmetrically arranged with a tall flat roofed garage in the center flanked by two lower service areas with wide cantilevered roofs. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The low hipped roof has a boxed cornice lined by carved wooden brackets, and is interrupted in the center by a boxy attic area which is an apparent addition. The formerly segmentally arched window openings have been partially enclosed to accommodate rectangular windows. The raised brick, segmentally arched lintels remain above these windows and above the entries. The front entry still retains its original wide segmentally arched transom above double doors. On the southwest corner there is a one story open porch supported by Doric columns; on the northwest corner there is a two story frame porch.		28. NO. OF STORIES 2 1/2		7. OTHER NAME(S)
43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE Dr. Samuel A. Richmond, a prominent physician, was first listed at this address in 1876. He later moved to another survey property at 209 North 18th Street. Dr. Richmond purchased both properties from Maggie Harris Chapman, the daughter of William Harris for whom the Harris Addition was named. This formerly high quality Italianate building was been drastically altered, particularly in the treatment of the windows. However, the bracketed cornice line, lintels and massing remain which make restoration possible and render the building a contributing member of a possible Harris Addition historical district.		29. 42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The low pitched hipped roof has a boxed cornice underscored by a simple fascia lined by dentiling along the street facades facing north and east. The windows are generally surmounted by segmentally arched lintels set flush to the wall and formed by radiating brick. Rectilinear windows are set within these frames. The front facade is dominated by a deeply projecting square bay in the southern half. The front entry is in the recessed northern section and is sheltered by a contemporary metal canopy.		28. NO. 43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE George W. Sargent, a clerk for R.L. McDonald and Co., was first listed at this address in 1887, as was James W. Sargent to whom the property later transferred before the year 1897. In 1902, at a cost of $1,200, a large addition was made to the rear of the house and the original front entry porch was replaced by a curvilinear front porch stretching across the entire facade. Although the full front porch has been removed and the segmentally arched window openings have been altered, the building retains its original profile and cornice treatment which render it a strongly contributing member of the proposed historic district in the Harris Addition.		29. The present aspect of this, however, was achieved in the early part of the 20th Century. According to the Sanborn Maps of 1897 and 1911, the front porch was added between those years. Major additions were made to the north, east and south sections of the house after 1911. There is a 1912 building permit in the name of the Wyeth Realty Co. and at a cost of $1,600; and another in 1916, in the name of Forest Campbell, a relative of the Wyeth family, at a cost of $900. 42. FURTHER DESCRIPTION OF IMPORTANT FEATURES The front facade is dominated by a steep gable end with a centered Palladian window. The roof is underscored by a panelled fascia accented with decorative knobs on the north, south and west sides. The windows are surmounted by segmentally arched label lintels formed by raised brick. Textured brick is used under the fascia and raised labels. There is a front entry in the northern bay that is capped by a shallow gablette. There is another front entry recessed in the southern bay, now hidden behind an enclosed porch.		43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE This building was constructed for John A. French, a physician, in 1895, at a cost listed on the building permit of $1,200. His office was located elsewhere on South Eighth Street. Despite alteration of the entry porches, the Queen Anne window treatment and gable end are intact and would contribute strongly to the establishment of an historic district in the Harris Addition area of high quality 19th and early 20th Century residential buildings.

43. HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE 2 The water permit for this property was taken out in 1903 by Charles E. Gill, of Gill's Livery, who lived to the south at 2015 Francis. There was a small structure on this site as early as 1897, according to the Sanborn Insurance of that year. However, by 1911, as shown on the Sanborn Map of that year, this earlier structure had been replaced by this large one, reenforcing 1903 as the date of construction. Although the original surface treatment has been sheathed in siding, many of the architectural details and profile lines remain, rendering this building a strongly contributing member of a potential historic district in the Harris Addition area.		29.
