

Union Soldiers Not in the Engagements Beginning 26 Sep 1864

Barring evidence to the contrary, the following must be accepted as fact: The 47th Mo Volunteer Infantry individual companies had the following assignments during the Battle of Pilot Knob Company A was in the battle; Company B was in DeSoto and on the Big River Bridge and probably teamed up with General Smith's command; Company C was in Perry and Cape Counties; Company D was ordered to DeSoto on the 27th after being on bridge details and probably teamed up with Smith; Company F had 25 men at Farmington and under Ewing's Command; Company G was at Pilot Knob; Company H was at Pilot Knob and 36 men left on the 27th to guard the quartermaster wagons; Company I was never ordered to Pilot Knob, but it appears many men showed up here despite the orders of their Captain (the rest stayed home in Fredericktown); and Company K was in Ste. Genevieve County. Units on bridge duty in the immediate area north of Pilot Knob and the unit leaving with the wagon train are counted as present at the battle. Prisoners of the rebels prior to Sept 26 and those who did not make it back from Patterson, MO are not counted as being in the battle.

Union Soldiers Not in the Engagements Beginning 26 Sep 1864

Barring evidence to the contrary, the following must be accepted as fact: The 47th Mo Volunteer Infantry individual companies had the following assignments during the Battle of Pilot Knob Company A was in the battle; Company B was in DeSoto and on the Big River Bridge and probably teamed up with General Smith's command; Company C was in Perry and Cape Counties; Company D was ordered to DeSoto on the 27th after being on bridge details and probably teamed up with Smith; Company F had 25 men at Farmington and under Ewing's Command; Company G was at Pilot Knob; Company H was at Pilot Knob and 36 men left on the 27th to guard the quartermaster wagons; Company I was never ordered to Pilot Knob, but it appears many men showed up here despite the orders of their Captain (the rest stayed home in Fredericktown); and Company K was in Ste. Genevieve County. Units on bridge duty in the immediate area north of Pilot Knob and the unit leaving with the wagon train are counted as present at the battle. Prisoners of the rebels prior to Sept 26 and those who did not make it back from Patterson, MO are not counted as being in the battle.

Barring evidence to the contrary, the following must be accepted as fact: The 47th Mo Volunteer Infantry individual companies had the following assignments during the Battle of Pilot Knob Company A was in the battle; Company B was in DeSoto and on the Big River Bridge and probably teamed up with General Smith's command; Company C was in Perry and Cape Counties; Company D was ordered to DeSoto on the 27th after being on bridge details and probably teamed up with Smith; Company F had 25 men at Farmington and under Ewing's Command; Company G was at Pilot Knob; Company H was at Pilot Knob and 36 men left on the 27th to guard the quartermaster wagons; Company I was never ordered to Pilot Knob, but it appears many men showed up here despite the orders of their Captain (the rest stayed home in Fredericktown); and Company K was in Ste. Genevieve County. Units on bridge duty in the immediate area north of Pilot Knob and the unit leaving with the wagon train are counted as present at the battle. Prisoners of the rebels prior to Sept 26 and those who did not make it back from Patterson, MO are not counted as being in the battle.

Todd, John	Private	3rd MSM Cavalry	D				Detached Service in Central Missouri for Several Months however some listed as such were at the battle

Union Soldiers Not in the Engagements Beginning 26 Sep 1864

Barring evidence to the contrary, the following must be accepted as fact: The 47th Mo Volunteer Infantry individual companies had the following assignments during the Battle of Pilot Knob Company A was in the battle; Company B was in DeSoto and on the Big River Bridge and probably teamed up with General Smith's command; Company C was in Perry and Cape Counties; Company D was ordered to DeSoto on the 27th after being on bridge details and probably teamed up with Smith; Company F had 25 men at Farmington and under Ewing's Command; Company G was at Pilot Knob; Company H was at Pilot Knob and 36 men left on the 27th to guard the quartermaster wagons; Company I was never ordered to Pilot Knob, but it appears many men showed up here despite the orders of their Captain (the rest stayed home in Fredericktown); and Company K was in Ste. Genevieve County. Units on bridge duty in the immediate area north of Pilot Knob and the unit leaving with the wagon train are counted as present at the battle. Prisoners of the rebels prior to Sept 26 and those who did not make it back from Patterson, MO are not counted as being in the battle.
